

THIS WEEK IN THE BIBLE

In the New Testament, Paul closes his letter to the Romans with an appeal to his fellow believers to strive for unity, truth, and kindness in everything they do. In the Old Testament, the growing menace of the Assyrians and the Babylonians doesn't stop kings like Hezekiah and Josiah from trying to lead the kingdom of Judah back to God. But it will get worse before it gets better.

AUG 1-7

After decades spent as exiles in foreign lands, God's people are finally allowed to return to Jerusalem, but the city is in ruins. Under the direction of Ezra and Nehemiah, they begin the long process of rebuilding their home. In the New Testament, Paul writes to the Corinthian Christians to address the internal squabbles and immorality that have developed within the church and that threaten to divide it.

In the New Testament, Paul advocates for orderly Christian worship and gives instructions for the Lord's Supper that are still followed today. In the Old Testament, Nehemiah recounts the astounding effort of God's people to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. Determined to accomplish his mission, Nehemiah doesn't let logistics, corrupt officials, or heated enemy opposition stand in the way of God's work.

In the Old Testament, we read about Esther and Job, whose obedience to God leads them into unexpected—and in Job’s case, quite painful—situations. In the New Testament, Paul explores the mysteries of spiritual gifts and prophecy, the resurrection of the dead, and the nature of life after death. He also gives us one of the most famous passages in all his letters: a moving discourse on love.
